Cybertalk: Co-constructing Learning

This paper presents the first results from a longitudinal study, which evaluates the effect of CMC discourse mode on peer language learning among advanced German language learners. We investigate the discourse strategies used in semi-formal, asynchronous written discourse (threaded discussion) and develop assessment criteria for evaluating language learning in peer-to-peer technologies.